

Do You Remember?

Does anyone remember this incident from August 1940?

An Avro Anson Mk 1 apparently made a forced landing on the beach off the Silloth to Skinburness Road. It appears that before the tide came in a mobile crane brought the aircraft up to the road, lifting it over the sea defences.

The photo is taken from the front garden of 'Sunningdale' looking SW and the aircraft is probably in front of the Doughty's house.

There is no record of this incident in RAF Silloth's records, adding to the mystery of why this 'plane failed to land on the airfield.

The photo was sent in by Geoff Bland, please send any recollections to Bill Amyes, 54b Skinburness Road, Silloth, Tel: 016973 31687.
